CHARACTERISTICS

La Roche Pathway allows international students who do not meet the University's English proficiency requirement for an undergraduate degree to take academic credit-bearing courses while simultaneously completing English language instruction. In two 16-week semesters (23–26 hours of instruction per week), Pathway students earn a similar number of academic credits as first-semester direct-admit undergraduate students.

La Roche also offers English as a Second Language (ESL) courses for undergraduate students who do not have the minimum language proficiency to be in the Pathway Program.

Based on test scores, undergraduate students are placed in one of the following tracks:

TRACK	PLACEMENT*	COURSES	NON-ACADEMIC CREDITS	ACADEMIC CREDITS
